DAN SMOOT

VITAL VOTES IN CONGRESS

An essential pretension of the United Nations is that it supports self-determination for all people. That is, no people should be ruled, against their will, by a foreign power. The United Nations has never done anything to discourage communists from bloody oppression of civilized nations like Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and so on; but the UN did exert great pressures on European powers to withdraw from their colonial possessions and permit self-government by uncivilized tribes of Africans who are not capable of self-government.

When, under UN pressure, the European powers started withdrawing from Africa, chaos and bloodshed ensued. The dominant political force in practically all of the emerging African nations was communist-controlled. This was particularly true in the Belgian Congo. From the day it gained independence from Belgium, the Congo Republic has been dominated by men like the late Lumumba who was obviously a communist puppet.

The communist controlled Congo Republic claims sovereignty over a vast region of central Africa. In all this territory, the one province which was the most prosperous, the most nearly civilized, and the most nearly capable of self-government and general stability, was Katanga. The Premier of Katanga — Tshombe — was the only powerful political leader in the Congo who was pro-western and anti-communist.

Seeing the remainder of the Congo Republic degenerate into barbarism under communist control, Tshombe tried to protect the people of Katanga, by withdrawing Katanga from the Congo Republic. He expected United Nations help, but the United Nations did the opposite of what its own pretensions should have required. The UN went to war against Katanga to keep it from exercising self-determination.

The issue was clear: the United Nations was fighting a war for communism — to prevent Katanga from freeing itself of communist control.

The Soviet Union managed to confuse the issue, however, in the minds of American liberals. The Soviets denounced the UN Congo war and refused to help pay for it. This transparent maneuver gave liberal propagandists in the United States opportunity to claim that, since the Soviets were denouncing the UN Congo war, the war must be hurting communism, and that, therefore, the United States should support the war.

Using this idiotic rationale, the Kennedy Administration fully supported the UN war against Katanga, whose government and people were anti-communist and pro-western.

When the Soviets refused to help pay for the UN war, all other communist nations and most neutralist nations followed the Soviet lead. Major European nations refused to support the UN war for opposite reasons: they did not want to be a party to, and to help pay for, the shameful UN action in Africa.

So, by late 1961, the UN was in deep financial trouble. Its Congo war for communism was costly, and the United States was one of few nations willing to pay for it.

UN officialdom announced that if the UN could not raise 200 million dollars (above its routine income) the UN would be bankrupt. The UN proposed to raise the money by "selling" a 200-million-dollar issue of worthless bonds to member nations.

On January 30, 1962, President Kennedy asked Congress to authorize purchase of half the total UN bond issue.

Decency and common sense should have compelled the Congress to reject the President's request and to rebuke him for making it.

Instead, the Congress debated the question of how we should go about giving the UN 100 million dollars.

On April 5, 1962, Senator Jack Miller (Republican, Iowa) offered an amendment which did not affect our giving the 100 million dollars to the UN but did specify that we would stop our direct aid to any UN member nation which was more than one year in arrears in paying its UN assessments. The Senate rejected this amendment by a vote of 78 to 15.

Senator Frank J. Lausche (Democrat, Ohio) suggested that the United States should not lend the United Nations more than 25 million dollars, unless our loans above that amount were actually matched (not merely promised) by other UN members. The Senate rejected this proposal, 64 to 29.

Senator Karl E. Mundt (Republican, South Dakota) suggested limiting the United States loan to 25 million dollars, plus an amount equal to half the sum of all loans made by all other UN member nations. The Senate rejected this proposal, 67 to 24.

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (Republican, Iowa) suggested that we lend 100 million dollars to the UN — but that we make it a three-year loan, bearing the same amount of interest the United States government has to pay on money it borrows. The Senate even rejected this Hickenlooper proposal; and then, by a stand of 75 to 25 (on April 5, 1962) passed S 2768, authorizing the President to lend 100 million dollars to the UN, on any terms the President pleases.

Any Senator who voted for this UN loan should be retired from the United States Senate because he is certainly not serving the interests of the people of the United States. Under "Senate" in the voting tabulation in this issue, you can see how your two Senators voted.

S 2768 — the UN loan bill — is not yet law, because the House of Representatives has not approved it. Maximum public pressure on every member of the House might prevent this dreadful measure from becoming law.

Manpower Bill

On February 28, 1962, the U. S. House of Representatives, by a stand of 356 to 63, approved HR 8399, the Manpower Development and Training Act of 1962, authorizing a two-year, 262 million, 375 thousand dollar program to provide "vocational training and on-the-job training" for an estimated 410 thousand American workers burdened with "obsolete and insufficient skills."

In this Bill, Congress (in defiance of constitutional limitations) authorizes the Secretary of Labor to decide the number of Americans who should be working in any specific field of industry at any given time and place; and to allocate taxpayers' money for training American youth in fields which the Secretary of Labor decides they should be trained in.

This Manpower Bill, slightly revised by Conference between House and Senate, was passed as S1991 by voice vote in the Senate on March 8 and in the House on March 13. The President signed it into law on March 15.

Thus, you cannot determine how your two U. S. Senators stood on this vital issue, unless they will tell you directly; but, in Column 1 of the tabulations below, you can see how your U. S. Representative stood.

Educational TV

On March 7, 1962, the House of Representatives passed a bill (HR 132) providing 25 million 520 thousand dollars in "matching grants for plans for educational television development and the construction of educational television transmission facilities."

The Tenth Amendment prohibits the federal government from engaging in any activity not authorized in the Constitution; and nothing in our Constitution authorizes such federal activity as prescribed in this Educational TV Bill. Hence, the Bill is clearly unconstitutional. It will give the Washington bureaucracy unconstitutional power to decide which cities are to have tax money for government sponsored (and, therefore, controlled) television facilities.

The House approved this Bill (HR 132) by a stand of 343 to 69. The roll-call is tabulated in Column 2, below.

Antitrust Bill

On March 13, 1962, the House of Representatives, by a stand of 339 to 58, passed S 167, a Bill authorizing the Attorney General "to issue a civil investigative demand compelling the production of business records for use in antitrust cases."

This Bill illustrates the breakdown of our American constitutional system, which protected citizens from tyranny by dividing the powers of the federal government into three distinct branches (legislative, judicial, executive) and by giving each branch the means and responsibility of checking and balancing the power of the other two.

S 167, unconstitutionally gives an officer of the Executive Branch (the Attorney General) powers formerly reserved to courts and grand juries.

Under our constitutional system, the Attorney General could lawfully obtain documents of citizens and business firms only by getting a search warrant from a court — or a subpoena issued by a grand jury — after listing the records he wanted and showing probable cause to believe they existed and reasonable necessity for getting them; and only a court could decide upon guilt and impose punishment for refusal to answer a subpoena.

Under the terms of S 167, the executive officer himself makes the judicial decision of what evidence is competent and necessary and he issues his own subpoena.

In Column 3 of the voting tabulation below, you can see how your Congressman voted on this bill.

New Withholding Tax

The Administration's Revenue Bill for 1962 (HR 10650) contains a provision requiring all banking institutions to withhold federal income tax on interest earned by money on deposit, and requiring the withholding of federal income tax on all investment and dividend earnings.

The withholding tax in effect since 1943 is unconstitutional and bad enough: it imposes involuntary servitude on all employers, making them unwilling and unpaid bookkeepers and tax collectors for the federal government. This new withholding law is even worse: it will create monstrous expense and confusion for tens of thousands of business firms (who, of course, will have to pass the expense on to individual consumers, the people who carry the tax load, in the end). The total that this new withholding law will cost the American people (through additional costs imposed on business firms) will probably exceed the amount of new revenue it produces for the federal government. And, of course, the law violates many fundamental provisions of our Constitution and Bill of Rights.

On March 29, 1962, U. S. Representative John W. Byrnes (Republican, Wisconsin) moved to have the withholding provision stricken from the Revenue Bill (HR 10650). The House rejected Byrnes' motion by a stand of 228 to 193. Every Congressman who stood with Byrnes on this proposal is credited with a "conservative" vote in Column 4 below: Every Congressman against Byrnes' motion was, of course, in favor of the new withholding tax — and is credited with a "liberal" stand in Column 4 below.

Revenue Bill

On March 29, 1962, the House of Representatives, by a stand of 224 to 202, passed the Administration's 93-billion-dollar Revenue Bill for 1962 (HR 10650 — see "New Withholding Tax," immediately above), giving the President virtually everything he had asked for — including the new withholding tax law.

The close vote is, however, encouraging: 202 United States Congressmen did go on record against the President's wasteful and unconstitutional spending program.

Tabulations are in Column 5 below.

International Monetary Fund

On April 2, 1962, the House of Representatives, by a stand of 258 to 93 (with 85 Congressmen neither voting nor taking a stand) passed HR 10162, authorizing a loan of 2 billion dollars to the International Monetary Fund — in addition to 1 billion, 500 million dollars authorized three years ago.

In effect, HR 10162 (which is an amendment to the 1945 Bretton Woods Agreements Act) offers United States currency to nine of the most prosperous nations on earth — Canada, Japan, and seven Western European nations. Despite denials of the Secretary of the Treasury, this new "loan" to the IMF is insidiously disguised foreign aid: and it will, therefore, speed the flight of our gold reserve to foreign lands, thus undermining the economic foundations of western civilization by pushing the United States ever closer to a worthless currency and national bankruptcy.

The House roll-call vote is recorded in Column 6.

Peace Corps

On April 3, 1962, the House, by a stand of 321 to 73, appropriated (HR 10700) 63 million, 750 thousand dollars to finance the ridiculous, harmful, and unconstitutional Peace Corps for another year — permitting a tenfold expansion of personnel (from 920 to 10,000) for the Corps.

House roll-call is in Column 7.

ROLL CALL VOTES

Under "Senate," we record the stand of U. S. Senators on the UN Bond issue. Under "House," Column 1 records U. S. Representatives' stand on the Manpower Bill; Column 2, Educational TV; Column 3, Antitrust Bill; Column 4, New Withholding Tax; Column 5, Revenue Bill; Column 6, International Monetary Fund; Column 7, Peace Corps.

A "C" indicates a conservative stand for constitutional principles and against an unconstitutional or harmful Administration proposal; an "L" indicates a liberal stand against constitutional principles and for Administration proposals; an "O" indicates that the legislator neither voted nor took a public stand.

In most cases, the "C" or "L" indicates an actual vote; but, in a few cases, the legislator did not actually vote but took a formal stand, revealing how he would have voted. In these tabulations, no distinction is made between actual voting and taking a formal stand on an issue.

WHO IS DAN SMOOT?

Dan Smoot was born in Missouri. Reared in Texas, he attended SMU in Dallas, taking BA and MA degrees from that university in 1938 and 1940.

In 1941, he joined the faculty at Harvard as a Teaching Fellow in English, doing graduate work for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in the field of American Civilization.

In 1942, he took leave of absence from Harvard in order to join the FBI. At the close of the war, he stayed in the FBI, rather than return to Harvard.

He worked as an FBI Agent in all parts of the nation, handling all kinds of assignments. But for three and a half years, he worked exclusively on communist investigations in the industrial midwest. For two years following that, he was on FBI headquarters staff in Washington, as an Administrative Assistant to J. Edgar Hoover.

After nine and a half years in the FBI, Smoot resigned to help start the Facts Forum movement in Dallas. As the radio and television commentator for Facts Forum, Smoot, for almost four years spoke to a national audience giving both sides of great controversial issues.

In July, 1955, he resigned and started his own independent program, in order to give only one side — the side that uses fundamental American principles as a yardstick for measuring all important issues.

If you believe that Dan Smoot is providing effective tools for those who want to think and talk and write on the side of freedom, you can help immensely by subscribing, and encouraging others to subscribe, to The Dan Smoot Report.
